

사주 감정문

SAJU PORTRAIT – SAMPLE EXCERPT

己

A SHORT PASSAGE FROM

A Saju Voyage Portrait

Sample · for prospective readers

SAJU VOYAGE

ELEMENTAL FINGERPRINT

FIRE

2.0

WOOD

2.0

METAL

2.0

EARTH

1.3

WATER

1.0

---

己 · 상관격 · Hurting Officer

garden soil—patient, fertile, ready to hold what is planted

Contents

---

Your Portrait .....	4
What the chart's structure makes ordinary in your life
Four Pillars .....	5
Who You Are .....	6
The constitutional shape your chart was built around
Continue Your Reading .....	7
What the full Portrait covers, and how to begin

BIRTH	23 December 1989 · 06:14 KST · Seoul (sample chart)
DAY MASTER	己 Gi · Yin Earth · garden soil—patient, fertile, ready to hold what is planted
ELEMENT BALANCE	Fire 2.0 · Wood 2.0 · Metal 2.0 · Earth 1.3 · Water 1.0
USEFUL · FRICTION	▲ Fire (용신 Yong-Sin ) · ▼ Water (기신 Gi-Sin )

Your Portrait

---

THIS CHART IS A Hurting Officer Pattern (상관격 Sang-Gwan-Gyeok / 傷官格) Yin Earth nativity, where the Day Master is winter garden soil—quiet, fertile, ready—and the chart's most visible energy is the blade-bright Yang Metal in the Month Stem. At the center sits a plot of ground born on the shortest day of the year, frozen under a silent sky, with one small ember of Fire in the Year Stem and a sharper Yin Fire under the lamp of the Hour. The chart was not built to push outward. It was built to hold what is planted, wait for the warmth to arrive, and then say—clearly, sometimes too clearly for the room—what is actually true.

Four Pillars

	시주 Hour · legacy	일주 ★ Day · self	월주 Month · career	년주 Year · origin
Heavenly Stems 천간 Cheon-Gan	丁 Jeong Yin Fire [1.0] 偏印 · Indirect Resource	己 Gi ★ Yin Earth [1.0] Day Master	庚 Gyeong Yang Metal [1.0] 傷官 · Hurting Officer	丙 Byeong Yang Fire [1.0] 正印 · Direct Resource
Earthly Branches 지지 Ji-Ji	卯 Myo  Wood	酉 Yu  Metal	子 Ja  Water	寅 In  Wood

Who You Are

---

YOU ARE GARDEN SOIL. NOT the mountain that declares itself against the sky, not the riverbed that accepts whatever the current delivers—you are the plot of earth where things are meant to grow. Fertile, quiet, patient. The kind of ground that holds a seed for exactly as long as it needs to be held, and not one day longer.

But here is the complication your chart carries from birth: you were born in deep winter. 子月 (Rat month, late December), the coldest point in the cycle. Garden soil frozen under a silent sky. Everything that makes you fertile—the adaptability, the capacity to hold and nurture—sits underneath a layer of ice. The warmth you need to do what you naturally do does not arrive automatically. It has to be sourced, cultivated, earned. Your life's central task, written into your first breath, is thawing.

庚 Gyeong (Yang Metal) sits in your Month Stem as 傷官 Sang-Gwan (Hurting Officer)—your public-facing intellect. This is not a gentle wit. 傷官 Sang-Gwan is the blade that sees the flaw in the system before the system knows it has one. You walk into a meeting, read the org chart, and within ten minutes have identified the structural weakness nobody wants to name. The blade is honest. It is also impatient with hierarchies that protect mediocrity, and it does not always wait to be invited before it speaks.

The reason you have been told you are "too direct"—and you have been told this, somewhere along the line, by someone whose approval mattered—is not a flaw in your character. It is the chart's blade meeting a room that wanted something softer. Garden soil with a metal edge. Fertile and exact, in the same breath. Most charts are not built to be both.

What rescues this chart from sharpness is the Fire. 丙 Byeong in the Year Stem, 丁 Jeong in the Hour Stem—Yang Fire at the dawn of your life and Yin Fire at the close of each day. The 正印 Jeong-In and 偏印 Pyeon-In of warmth and inheritance. They are why the blade does not become bitterness. They are why, when you do speak the unspoken thing, people often thank you for it later.

The work of this chart, then, is not to dull the blade. The blade is constitutional; it is yours. The work is to keep the Fire close—the morning hour you spend with one good book before the noise begins, the lamp you light at your desk before you open the inbox, the small daily warmth that thaws the ground enough for the blade to be useful instead of cold.

Continue Your Reading

---

THIS IS ROUGHLY 600 WORDS from a 10,000+ word Portrait. The full reading continues with How You Work (where the chart's blade earns a living and where it sabotages itself), How You Love (the architecture of partnership your chart was built around, including marriage timing as discovered coordinates), Where You've Been (a decade-by-decade retrospective so specific that you will find at least one year you remember by the conversation it began), Where You're Going (the next ten years, year by year, written as scenes you can stand inside before deciding how to walk through them), and What To Do (a four-layer cultivation practice—habits, environments, partnerships, decisions—that the chart specifically asks for).

Order your Portrait at sajuvoyage.com. Prepared from your exact birth data, delivered as a publication-quality PDF within 48 hours.

SAJU VOYAGE

사주 · 四柱 · FOUR PILLARS LIFE BLUEPRINT

Know your nature. Navigate your timing.

---

Prepared for Sample Reader

Saju Portrait

Chart cast for 23/12/1989 · 06:14 · Seoul

Reading completed 2026-04-24

sajuvoyage.com

© 2026 Saju Voyage